Job Opening: Product Manager

PHILOSHOPIC, the worlds most exciting Cloud Commerce Technologies company is seeking for a Product Manager to work out of its Cyprus office.

Interested? Just check if you fit the position and take action!

What will be my job description?

You will own a product from the PHILOSHOPIC portfolio end-to-end. The product is mature with many happy users however customer needs and competition never end. You will be responsible to keep developing the product to remain in good shape and competitive. You will be both hands on coding as well as visionary to come up with your ideas to include in your product roadmap.

What kind of product will I be managing?

The product is a cloud based framework serving customers 24/7 handling transactions worth millions every month. You will be given full training of the business and technical aspects as soon as you join!

What technical skills do I need to have?

You should have excellent knowledge of Object Oriented Programming concepts and understanding of web-app programming concepts, mobile app programming and concepts in designing transactional systems including knowledge of IT security. You should thus be proficient in Java and the use of Eclipse for development, use of Bootstrap for UI, use of GWT for event handling, running apps on Google AppEngine, running apps on Amazon AWS and use of JavaFX for desktop apps.

We also expect you to be knowledgeable in linux system administration, SQL, packaging apps, C# .NET and PHP and be familiar with the use of source control and testing frameworks.

What kind of a person are you looking for?

First of all, you will be the owner of the product so you must be able to work on your own, take initiatives and manage tasks, resources and expectations to meet the agreed objectives. The help button will be at your disposal to keep you going - not to get things ready.

You should also be comfortable discussing with customers, partners and users of various levels and properly documenting things you agree or request. You will frequently engage to gather requirements and turn them into product features. You will also manage the deployment of new projects thus train and support new users on your product as well as engage in pre-sales activities presenting your product and contributing towards proposals to win new customers.

Where will I be based?

You will have access to workspace at the PHILOSHOPIC offices in Nicosia - you will though be spending time at the customer premises as well when needed. You can also work remotely if possible as you will be measured on your product performance/deliverables and not the hours spent in office.

Will I need to travel?

Today the customers of your product are in Cyprus - We have already projects abroad for other products but nothing stops you from turning your product into an international success - you are joining to help make things happen!

How many years of past experience do you ask for?

If you have the right skills and attitude, number of years in service do not necessarily change who you are today. Having a great track record is always a plus but if you are fresh and confident, we can simply give you a quick task and enable you to prove how capable you are to get a job done - this is what matters!

I think I fit well in that role! What's the next step?

This is the time that we are excited you find the position of Product Manager at PHILOSHOPIC a great fit for your career aspirations.

We thus look forward to receive your CV and any past work portfolio/references by email at careers@philoshopic.com.

We will then contact you to inform you on the next step - It can be either an appointment to meet and talk or we inform you that the position has been given or your background does not really fit what we are looking for.
